ning, a negro, who killed Jodie Conn, a opening, "to give expression to your young farmer, last January, and who was heart's desire for Cuba Libre. The noblest brought here to-day for trial, with a epitaph ever written on a patriot's grave epitaph ever written on a patriot's grave is that carved upon the stone of the English patriot who yearned to teach the English patriot who yearned to teach the English patriot at the jail. It exploded, doing great damage. The militia are searching the town for the bomb-thrower. dience to God.' Thomas Jefferson, who penned our Declaration, had the fire in his spirit when he said, 'Liberty is the gift of God.' I deem it not unbecoming that even on this sacred day we should express our sympathy with those who are spending their lives in Cuba and who are giving their heart's blood to acquire that God-given gift of liberty.

"Cuba is part of the American Continent, and almost within halling distance of the United States. It is also a loophole of defence and a sentry at our gates an island about the size of the Keyston an island about the size of the keystone State, and of 1,350,000 inhabitants. But what is the condition of affairs in Cuba? It is the condition of war with sword, torch, dagger, and knife—and knife to the hilt. It is not only the condition of war, but of a war of murder and arson. War at the best is brutal. In Cuba it is fiendish and hellish, and every American ought to desire to see the hand of our nation stretched forth to prevent the continuance of the atrocities called war MONROE DOCTRINE. "What interest have we in Cuba? Those who represent nations in the House, Cabinet, Bench, and presidential chair, are nere agents and servants of the people who have designated them to represent them. It is their duty to consider the wishes of those people who placed them there, and who are now imploring them to put a stop to the Cuban atrocities. No nation is worthy to bear the name of a nation which shrinks from the great responsibility it has assumed in the family of nations, and for this nation I trust no weaknesses will enter into Cabinet or legislative walls that will keep it from whatever danger it may meet. This is not a case of trouble in a distant land but is at our very doors. You have heard of the Monroe doctrine that foreign nations must not seek conquests on Continent, and when the President of this country a short time ago reiterated that doctrine of Monroe in the affair with Venezuela, every American hand was raised in approval, and seventy million lives were ready to back the President.

Is this great government now to play the 'dog in the manger,' or shall we say to all the world that we realize the destiny of Cuba to be free and another star on our flag? We realize it so much that we will question the right of any other country to occupy it. "THE DARK, DESERTED HOUSE."

"It is public opinion percolating from the workshop and the fireside that gradually makes up the actions of the State What is the public opinion of the States? It has been set forth in many forms, so that 'he who runs may read.' When the Democratic convention at Chicago and the Republican convention at Louis expressed sympathy for Cuba in their platforms, they voiced the pub-lic opinion of the people of the United States in regard to Cuba. What has Congress done? More than a year ago the Senate and the House passed resolutions urging the late President to inter cede in the interests of Cuba. I am glad-to say this session passed not only a reso-lution of sympathy, but the Senate passed a resolution seeking to recognize Cuba as a beligerent. What has become of the resolution? (Shouts of "Reed!" Reed!" from the audience.) It has gone to the tomb of the Capitol, gone to the great political morgue on Capitol Hill, where silent spectres flit around the halls once occupied by representatives. But perhaps I am treading on delicate ground, I can only regret the degeneration, and of the dead let me speak no iil. Yet I can only think of the whilom House of Representatives as the poet laureate of Eng-land thought of the body of the dead as 'the dark, deserted house,' where life and thought no longer dwell.' BOLD BANK ROBBERY.

OMAHA, NEB., June 28 .-- A special to the Bee, from Deadwood, S. D., says: ed to London this afternoon, her final can citizenship. We have protested, we have protested; but jubilee-day but one, and made what most men still die in solitary confinement." Four masked men this morning made & desperate attempt to rob the Butte County Bank, at Bellefourche. Entering the bank, with revolvers drawn, they ordered the customers present and bank officials to hold up their hands. A little hesitancy on the part of Cashler Marble drew a shot from the gun of one of the robbers, which clipped off a large portion of the cashier's right ear, and forced compliance with the command. The safe and counters were relieved of the cash they contained, and the robbers, mounting their horses, which had been conveniently stationed, rode away.

"History is but repeating itself in this, An alarm was immediately given, and in a few minutes a well-mounted and armed posse was in pursuit of the robbers. Within a few miles from town the posse came up with the fugitives, and a running fight ensued, which resulted in one of the robbers throwing up his hands and surrendering. The others, being better mounted, continued their flight, but are being closely pursued, and Saxon race should no longer look un-moved upon this murder inspired by fiends have very few chances for escape.

The robbers had little opposition, and had quite a start before the alarm could "War is an awful thing, and God forbid that we should go into it needlessly. be given. THE ROBBERS DESPERATE,

As the party started away after the assault on the bank, an unusual display of firearms on their part attracted the attention of A. Giles, a merchant, who surmised that something was wrong, and gave an alarm. Giles was made the tar-get for a voney from the robbers' pistols, but escaped uninjured.

Pursuit was prompt, the bandits having barely time to unlitch their horses and mount before being surrounded. In the fight that followed, Walter Gay, of Gay & Sons, was shot through the cheek, receiving a painful wound. The outlaws fired right and left while riding leader of men, who does not worship the "That's Bryan," shouted some one in out of the town, but no one else was the audience.

"I will not mention Bryan's name or wounded. Thomas Day, the captured robber, was any other name," said Senator Daniel.
"I hope the day will never come when a American blood is not thicker than stranger in the vicinity. The rest of any other name," said Senator Daniel. American blood is not thicker than water, but I hesitate to say that some of it is thicker, for some of it seems thinner than the Potomac, which comes to us through the faucet." the gang are now at bay at the Three
